Judge Refuses to Grant Injunction Against John R. Lewis

HOWAT'S HANDS DIRTY

Played Both Ends Against Middle, Jurist Says; Lewis Now Has Full Control

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—(Special) Judge Samuel L. Dewey, in a court ruling today, refused to grant the injunction sought by Alexander Howat against John R. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers organization.

Howat had asked that Lewis be restrained from expelling Howat and his followers in the Kansas district from the International union and all operations from dealing with officials sent into the district by Lewis.

The decision upholds Lewis in deposing Howat and his "rebels" and in suspending them from the International organization for violation of their contracts.

The court's ruling puts the officials appointed by John R. Lewis in supreme authority in the Kansas coal fields.

Judge Dewey charged that Howat came into his court "with unclean hands" in that he violated the contract of his own union and the laws of a sister state—Kansas—with one hand, he sought the protection of the federal courts with the other.

The court made it clear that the decision in no way dealt with the constitutionality of the Kansas industrial court act.

"But," said Judge Dewey, "since this act is on the statute books of that state, Howat cannot expect to come into the court of a sister state seeking relief."

The opinion of 300 words reviewed the entire strike situation in Kansas.

Howat has "No Complaint." It held that the miners struck in violation of their contracts and that they "had no complaint" in the manner in which he was expelled from the union.

Howat, in the opinion, was accused of "aiding by secret and art" the strike called in Kansas by the miners in protest of Howat's six months' suspension from the union.

Howat was without right to complain over the use of the district's funds by Van A. Bitner and other Lewis officials sent into the district when Howat and his administration were ousted by the International organization.

The right of the mine operators to deal with the Lewis faction in violation of their contracts and to suspend Howat from the union, have no standing in case they seek to secure jobs, now that the strike has been called off.

The decision was regarded here as one of the greatest reverses sustained by Howat during his stormy leadership of the Kansas miners.

SMALL LOSES A POINT

Judge Announces Unexpectedly That He Overrules Defense Attack on Prosecution Bill of Rights.

By The Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 14.—The prosecution in the case of Gen. Small and Vernon Curtis charged with conspiracy to defraud the state, won a victory today when Judge Edwards overruled an attack by the defense on the state's bill of particulars.

Judge Edwards ordered the defendants arraigned to enter their pleas but both had left for Chicago a few minutes earlier, and the arraignment finally was set for next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

At the same time the defense will present its case for an arraignment trial for Mr. Small and Mr. Curtis.

The decision of the court furnished a dramatic surprise at the close of a day of argument in which the defense attacked the state's bill of particulars as "irrelevant, impertinent and scandalous."

Court recessed for a few minutes at the close of the defense attack when the state's bill of particulars reached an agreement whereby the state was to have begun arguments today and continued them Monday.

When court reconvened Judge Edwards expected the defense to have reached a decision overruling the defense and that it would be unnecessary to hear the state.
